NEW YORK, Jan. 23.-McChesney, pride of the West, and Waterboy, pride of the East, two horses that attracted the most attention last year, may meet in one or two of the big stake events the coming season and settle the question of which is the better. They have been nominated in some of son, jr.'s Dolly Spanker.

They Will Be Better Paid, While Jockeys' Pay Is to Be Cut in Twain.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 23 .- The day for economy has arrived, and if local turfmen are to be believed salaries of trainers will soar sky-high, while the princely stipends annually paid for first call on this or that crack jockey are to be cut in twain. A canvass among owners of prominent stables or their agents in winter quarters at Montgomery Park shows little difference of opinion when statements are asked for on the equity of salaries as nowadays paid to competent jockeys. One and all seemingly agree that the trainer is the "man behind the gun," who gets little credit for the success of a horse and who is underpaid when the size of salary paid the jockey is taken into consid-

John W. Schorr, who has raced a big stable of horses on every track from New Orleans to Toronto and from Saratoga to San Francisco at various times during the Aspatia, b. f., 2, by Lieber Karl-Minty Gore. past dozen years, figures that he has spent more than $100,000 in jockey fees, exclusive of the amount paid for winning and losing mounts. Half of this amount will cover the aggregate paid his trainers. First call has been owned on the services of such jockeys as Tommy Murphy, Tommy Burns, John Bullman, Minder and others by the senior Schorr, but that policy has been altered now and no fancy-priced rider is to be found on the Schorr payroll this year.

are not paid as much as presidents of the United States earn annually," said one owner. "They don't earn such enormous amounts, and, therefore, the demand should not be so much greater than the market value for their services, which at best should not exceed amounts paid trainers. "I believe that my secretary's books will show that I have paid jockeys in retainer fees alone more than twice the amount that I have paid trainers, yet when I look back over the races that I have won I believe that the services of my good trainer have been responsible for at least ten times as many victories as the skill displayed at any stage of any race by Burns, Bullman, Murphy and the rest.' Roughly estimated, it is almost sure that during the last ten years the Schoor orange and black has been victorious in over 500 stakes, purses. Derbies or overnight handicaps. This includes the many brilliant wins of Endurance by Right, who possibly needed little more help to win a majority of her races than the skilled preparation administered by Trainer George Walker; Lady Schorr, Judith Campbell, who sold to J. E. Madden for $20,000; Onatas, winner of the first Louisville Nursery; Silverdale, winner of the St. Louis Derby; Sam Phillips, St. Louis Derby winner; Joe Frey, California Derby winner; Lieber Karl, Tennessee Derby winner; Presbyterian, Crescent City Derby winner; Meadowthorpe, Crescent City Derby winner, and various other luminaries on the Eastern and Western turf. Yet Mr. Schorr figures that trainer and horse were responsible for 90 per cent, of the victories, while he is willing to allow the princely salaried jockeys that wore his colors the other

EVERY FIGHTER HAS HIS FAVORITE BLOW

CARRY FORCE TO MARK

It Is Also Very Important to Know Where to Land a Blow on an Opponent.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.-"Every fighter has his favorite blow," says James J. Jeffries, "that is, he has blows he likes to use in preference to all others, because he believes they will bring about the desired effect more quickly. There are many blows to choose from and when you discover your most effective delivery the idea is to manipulate it with the best possible results. It didn't take me long to pick out a few good blows and I guess my battles show whether or not my judgment was correct.

"I never lost any time trying to invent new blows. That is all folly. I realized at once that the old ones were good enough for me-the same ones that old John L. Sullivan used. They got the money for him bring victory to me. There are just so many blows that will do damage to an opponent and success depends upon the use of them. You have got to know how to land them so that they will carry the force to the mark. It is almost as important to know where to land on an opponent as it is to know what blow to use. These fancy blows may be all right for a fellow who wants to be spectacular, but when it comes to scoring a knockout they have little or no

"One of my three best blows, which I use when the occasion warrants, is the left swing to the jaw. It is a 145 great blow for me and I can attribute companying picture with Jim Corbett. It is a great blow for me and I can attribute my greatest success in the ring to this one blow. I might say that it did more to gain ! me the championship than any other blow. Although I had used it more or less effectively in other battles, it was not until I met Fitzsimmons at Coney Island for the championship that I discovered what destruction it could work. I used several blows in that fight, but it was the left which started Fitzsimmons on the down grade-took all the life out of him and gave me the championship. "It is not possible to land the blow that you want every time. You have got to wait your chance, and that is what I did with Fitzsimmons. Fitzsimmons came to me with a rush in an effort to land a swing, but before he was able to score I let go my left, bringing my body around with a sudden jerk. It caught him flush on the jaw, and the jolt took him clean off his feet, seating him on the floor. That blow marked the beginning of the end of Fitzsimmons as champion. His grasp on the championship had been weakened. He will after a wallop, but his heads was w never clear, and it was simply a question of time when I should put him down for the final count. Fitzsimmons always had High Scores Were Made by the a great deal of respect for that left afterward. He tried hard to avoid it in our last battle at San Francisco. He was more cautious, but nevertheless I sent it to the

"The reason a fighter has more than one favorite blow is because one blow is not likely to succeed with all men alike. A fighter who might be an easy mark for a mark for a left, and it was that same blow that put Corbett out in our battle at Coney Island in the twenty-third round. "Up to the time I landed the knockout Corbett took many body punches without any apparent injury. He stood the game well, but I knew that if I could get that left to the mark it would do the trick. It took me a long time. I was patient, how-ever, and when I got Corbett on the ropes M. T. H. S. and 1,505 for Shortridge. Dickey trying to get away I landed on the jaw. He was pretty well tired out from the punishment he had received in the early rounds, but that left would have put him out had it caught him with the same effect in the early rounds. The only difference between the blow I landed on Fitzsimmons and on Corbett was that Fitz was coming nto me with a rush, while Corbett was running away and apparently covered up. "There are several ways I can land that good left. It is almost natural for all ighters to cover up their jaw when they are boxing. The right is used for a guard, while the left is used for a lead. This makes it difficult to reach the jaw with the left. There is only one thing to do under the circumstances. I simply get busy and force my opponent into a lead. I make a bluff feint with the right. Thinking that the blow is going to land on his head he gets busy blocking, and in that manner throws up his guard and leaves the jaw exposed. Instead of letting the right go, I draw it back quickly and shoot the left to the mark. I have worked it to perfection, and no matter how wise the oxer may be there is none too wise to be fooled once in a while."

The reform wave which swept over the turf some years ago has not yet subsided. Considerable work must yet be done before all the tricksters still in the jockey clubs are eliminated, but the percentage of such undesirables is now much smaller than ever before. Stringent rules, no favoritism and constant vigilance have brought the turf into its present condition and the sport is now run more for the sake of the sport itself than to enrich certain individuals or to benefit the gambling fraternity The very fact that the stewards of the jockey clubs in New York State have

The owning of race horses has come to be recognized as a legitimate investment and men to whom the sport has a fascination no longer have to hide their identity in this respect as they formerly did.
